How fast is a Ridgid impact driver?

Ridgid is sticking with their impact driver philosophy of high torque with a moderate speed trade-off. It maxes out at a modest 2900 RPM, which is plenty of speed for general screwdriving. Models that run near 3500 are so fast in high that I normally kick it down a mode to maintain control all but the longest screws.

What is the impact rate of a Ridgid octane tool?

The impact rate is more a function of the speed, so it's a little lower as well at 3500 IPM. Like the speed, it's plenty to get the job done well. Keep in mind that the entire Ridgid Octane line requires an Octane battery to get the full performance from an Octane tool. Other Ridgid 18V batteries work but reduce the performance slightly.

How do I use Ridgid?

Simply plug in any of the Ridgid 18V batteries (Compatible AC840083, AC840084, and AC46182 batteries not included), insert the attached phillip's head 1/4 inch hex bit, hook this up to a fastener, and you're good to go! With Ridgid, you can be sure that you're working with tools that are reliable under rough conditions. Do it right.

How do you use a Ridgid Phillip tool?

The rubber also protects against drops and falls, so this tool can be reliable for ages. Simply plug in any of the Ridgid 18V batteries (Compatible AC840083, AC840084, and AC46182 batteries not included), insert the attached phillip's head 1/4 inch hex bit, hook this up to a fastener, and you're good to go!
