What makes Diedrich drill rigs so successful?

Robert Caho, director of sales and marketing at Diedrich Drill, has spent 35 years in the industry and says the drilling crew and rig have to be at their best in order for business to boom. "Drill rig safety and maintenance is the number one key in our industry to keep it going," he says.

Can you make money selling rigs for scrap?

As a seller, a year ago, you'd be lucky to break even on a scrap jack-up sale after accounting for transport costs, administrative time spent, and legal fees. Today, owners still don't really make money off selling rigs for scrap, but the economics have improved enough to make the process more palatable.

Why is Ensco scrapping its jack-up drilling rigs and drillships?

Ensco, a UK-based drilling contractor, has decided to scrap five of its jack-up drilling rigs: Ensco 56, Ensco 81, Ensco 82, Ensco 86, and Ensco 99. Additionally, they will scrap a 1999-built drillship, Ensco DS-1, in order to reduce costs.
