

No drill spider rig fishing setup

What is spider rigging?

Spider rigging is great for trolling creek channels, open water with stumps or in creeks with rocks and brushy cover. Once you hook into the first crappie, be sure to make note of the depth and location. It's likely many more slabs will be holding in a similar area. The action can be heavy once the right combination is discovered.

How do you rig a crappie jig?

A typical setup involves six to eight rods spread evenly across the bow of the boat. Each rod can be rigged with different jig and live bait combinations to match the crappies' palate. The rig also allows you to probe multiple depths and determine where willing fish are holding that day.

How do you Jig a minnow?

Pair your jig with a live minnow or send a few baitfish on a solo mission. The idea is to try many different offerings until you determine what works. Bait should be frisky, so make sure you have an aerated minnow bucket like the Frabill Aqua-Life Bait Bucket with Aerator or baitwell on board.
