subordinate only to the toolpusher and is the one person who actually operates the rig. The driller also manages the day-to-day activities of the derrickhand and rotary helpers.

A pneumatic tool is first thought to have been used for rock drilling in 1844. Many quarries used hand held tools that required the driller to suspend himself from a rope over the quarry face in order to place the drill hole in the required position. This system used small diameter holes and was not only terribly inefficient, but very dangerous due to flying rock as a result of the inaccuracy of the drilled borehole.
